Peru State to Host Health Symposium

(KLZA)-- The public is invited to attend a symposium on rural health on Friday, Sept. 25 at 9 a.m. in the Black Box Theater, in Jindra Hall at Peru State College.

The event will highlight issues in rural health and feature panelists in health care from southeast Nebraska, as well as faculty and administration from the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at the University of Nebraska Medical Center and Peru State College.

Panelists will talk about issues in a roundtable discussion on the unique needs and opportunities of working in health care in the southeast Nebraska region.

There is an information session scheduled for students interested in RHOP at Peru State immediately after the discussion.

Through RHOP, Peru State College now has early admissions programs with UNMC's colleges of nursing, pharmacy and allied health professions. This offers students admission to programs in clinical laboratory science, physical therapy, physician assistant and radiography, pharmacy and nursing.

RHOP students in good standing receive a full tuition scholarship while enrolled at Peru State and guaranteed acceptance to UNMC.
