New Nebraska Management Website Unveiled

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The Nebraska Emergency Management Agency has launched a new website designed to be more user friendly.

The agency says the site's new look should make it more intuitive and easier to navigate. Along with a new appearance, the site will offer more features to users including a sortable calendar, an email subscription service and online registrations for events.

NEMA Assistant Director Bryan Tuma says the website will provide "quality information in a user-friendly format."
