

<http://www.MSCNews.net/news/index.cfm?nk=58945>

Boil Water Advisory Lifted in Netawaka

(KNZA)--The boil water advisory for the Jackson County community of Netawaka has been lifted.

That word Friday from the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

The advisory had been issued in May because of a line repair project resulting in repeated losses of pressure. Inadequate pressure may result in a loss of chlorine residuals and bacterial contamination.

KDHE says laboratory testing samples collected from Netawaka's public water supply indicates no evidence of contamination and all other conditions that placed the system at risk of contamination are deemed to be resolved.

Many Signals Communications