Nebraska Baseball Team set to Take On Creighton

Fresh off a 2-1 series win over the Iowa Hawkeyes, the Nebraska baseball team is set to host the Creighton Bluejays at Hawks Field at 6:35 tonight. It will be the first of three meetings between the two programs this season, with the other two games coming at TD Ameritrade Park in Omaha. The game will be shown nationwide on the Big Ten Network and streamed live on BTN2Go.com.

The Huskers enter the game with a 22-12 overall record and a 5-4 Big Ten record, while the Bluejays are 14-15 overall and 2-7 in the Missouri Valley.

The Huskers have won two straight games. They are scheduled to start sophomore Jon Keller, who will look to improve on his 3-1 record in his ninth start of the season. The Jays are set to counter with junior lefty Ty Blach, who is 3-3 on the year with a 3.00 ERA.
