Longtime JCN Teacher Resigns

The Jefferson County North school district will be saying good-bye to one of their long-time employees at the end of this year.

The USD 339 school board Monday night accepted the resignation of high school English teacher Jeremy Gish.

He's leaving JCN after 12 years to take a position closer to home in the Kansas City metro.

Superintendent Denise Jennings says Gish will be missed.

The board also hired Amanda Rice as a new Title One instructor for next year.

JCN's last day of school is scheduled for May 24th.
