Easton City Council Tables Sale of Community Center

(KAIR) -- In a meeting dominated by executive sessions, the Easton City Council Monday night decided to table action to February's meeting on potentially selling their community center.

City Clerk Jere Chieppo says the council did have offers on the table to consider prior to the executive session.

The center, which is the old high school, has been without a tenant for several years and the council has a desire to sell the building, which includes an addition that was more recently occupied by a beauty salon.
