

<http://www.MSCNews.net/news/index.cfm?nk=31941>

Bitter Cold Front Hits Kansas, Much of Nation

(AP)-- Area northeast Kansas school districts canceled classes Monday because of bitter cold temperatures.

The National Weather Service says a wind chill warning remains in effect through noon Monday. The weather service says the northeast sections of the state are expected to see wind chills of minus 25 to 30 degrees.

The cold snap comes after an area of east-central Kansas was coated this weekend with 3 to 4 inches of snow. Elsewhere accumulations ranged from 2 to 3 inches in southeastern Kansas to 1 to 3 inches in far northeast and south-central sections of the state.

Associated Press